REMOVAL OF CUSTOM-HOUSE FROM JACKSONVILLE TO HAZARD, IN FLORIDA.

June 24, 1842.
Read, and laid upon the table.

Mr. RAYNER, from the Committee on Commerce, submitted the following

REPORT:

The Committee on Commerce, to which were referred the petitions of sundry citizens of Duvall and Pilatka counties, in the Territory of Florida, report:

The petitioners ask for the removal of the custom-house from Jacksonrille to Hazard, and the establishment of a port of entry at the latter place. The committee have learned, from the Delegate from the Territory of Florida, (Mr. Levy,) that Jacksonville is a flourishing town on the St. John's, about forty miles above Hazard, which is near the mouth of the river; that Jacksonville is in the heart of a flourishing community, and is the point where the trade and commerce of the adjacent country concentrate, and find a natural market; that Hazard is an inconsiderable place, at the mouth of the St. John's, in a sparsely settled and poor country.

The Delegate (Mr. Levy) states to the committee, as his conviction, that the proposed removal of the custom-house is not desired by a majority of those interested, but that, on the other hand, it would subject them to inconvenience. The committee feel disposed to conform to the opinion of the Delegate, and therefore submit the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners ought not to be granted.
